

As we gather for our upcoming clergy conference, we invite everyone to approach our time together with a spirit of trust, respect, and mutual care. In recognition of the confidential nature of some discussions, we ask that all participants respect the privacy of what is shared by others, both during and after the event. This is an opportunity to reflect together, to listen deeply, and to support one another.

To help us be fully present, we kindly request that mobile phone use be kept to a minimum during sessions. Please set devices to silent and step outside if you need to take an urgent call. Official photos will be taken discreetly over the course of the conference; these images will be shared afterwards to give a flavour of our time together, while ensuring the focus remains on our shared experience rather than individual documentation. Thank you for helping to make this a welcoming and attentive time for all.
